STRUGGLE, IT MUST BE FOR A LIFETIME."

ANGELA DAVIS is a radical African-American feminist, socialist and scholar. Growing up in Jim Crow era Alabama, she attended segregated schools until age 14 when she was accepted into a program of the American Friends Service Committee, where she became involved in communist and other radical political organizing. As an uncompromising and fearless activist, Davis has had her share of national attention, becoming the third woman on the FBI's Most Wanted list after a gun registered in her name was used in an attempted prison escape. While imprisoned in a New York state detention center, she mobilized other inmates, helping to initiate a bail program for indigent prisoners. She was also a candidate for Vice President on the Communist ticket in 1980 and 1984, and was one of the founders of Critical Resistance, the leading national organization dedicated to ending the prison-industrial complex. As an internationally renowned public speaker and author, Angela Davis is a constant advocate for the rights of people of color, queers, women and prisoners.
